

4.2.3 Language discourses

Students will study a range of texts that convey attitudes to language diversity and change. The texts studied will include those written for non-specialist audiences.

Students will explore how texts are produced to convey views and opinions about language issues. They will explore how texts:

- represent language
- construct an identity for the producer
- position the reader and seek to influence them
- are connected to discourses about language.