

4.3 Interactions with the environment

This topic looks at the macro- and micro-effects of the interaction between organisms and the environment. It introduces the effects of lifestyle on the delicate balance within the human body. The topic shows how our understanding of electromagnetic waves has developed by investigating how they interact with different materials.