

3.6.3 Data processing and presentation

Students must understand the ways that data can be processed and presented including:

- organising and processing data, including an understanding of how technology can be used
- generating diagrams and visualisations to represent the data, including an understanding of outputs generated by appropriate technology
- generating statistical measures to compare data, understanding the advantages of using technology to automate processing.