

6 Effects of technological developments	6.1	Current and historical technological developments that have had an effect on the work of designers and technologists and their social, moral and ethical impacts: a) mass production – the consumer society, built-in obsolescence, the effect mass production has on employment b) the 'new' industrial age of high-technology production – computers and the development and manufacture of products, miniaturisation of products and components, the use of smart materials, products from innovative applications c) the global marketplace – multinational companies in developed and developing countries, manufacturing 'offshore' in developing countries and local and global production.
--	-----	---

Topic	What students need to learn:
-------	------------------------------