

2.3 The way in which the selection of ferrous and non-ferrous metals is influenced	The influence of the following factors when selecting materials for a specific application.
	2.3.1 Aesthetic factors: - a form - b colour - c texture.
	2.3.2 Environmental factors: - a sustainability - b pollution - c energy consumption in the production of steel - d corrosion and decay.
	2.3.3 Availability factors: - a use of stock materials - b use of specialist materials - c impact of market price on world consumption and demand.

METALS

Key idea	What students need to learn:
	2.3.4 Cost factors: - a quality of material - b manufacturing processes necessary - c commodity price on the London Metal Exchange - d cost of recycling in comparison to cost of producing new steel.
	2.3.5 Social factors: - a use for different social groups - b trends/fashion - c popularity.
	2.3.6 Cultural and ethical factors: - a avoiding offence - b suitability for intended market - c the consumer society - d the effects of mass production - e built-in product obsolescence.