

3. The route inspection problem

What students need to learn:

Algorithm for finding the shortest route around a network, travelling along every edge at least once and ending at the start vertex. The network will have up to four odd nodes.

Also known as the 'Chinese postman' problem. Students will be expected to use inspection to consider all possible pairings of odd nodes.

(The application of Floyd's algorithm to the odd nodes is not required.)
