

Section 6: Overall quality and communication of written work. (10 marks)

Level 3	7–10 marks • There is a high standard of communication that is relevant to the geographic purpose of the investigation. • Arguments are clear, demonstrating a strong degree of individuality. • Written work is very well structured, logical, concise, and includes good presentation with text and figures appropriately integrated. • Sources and literature references are clearly stated and accurately referenced throughout the investigation. • Geographical terminology is technical, used appropriately, and written language errors are rare.
Level 2	4–6 marks • There is a variable standard of communication that has some relevance to the geographic purpose of the investigation. • Arguments are present showing elements of individuality. • Written work is generally well structured, logical, concise and presentation is adequate with text and figures mostly integrated. • Sources and literature references are mostly referenced throughout the investigation. • Geographical terminology is present, but there are some written language errors.
Level 1	1–3 marks • There is basic communication that has limited relevance to the geographic purpose of the investigation. • Arguments are absent or simplistic. • The work is poorly or partially structured and lacks a logical order. Presentation is often poor with little attempt to integrate text and figures. • Sources and literature references are mostly excluded from the investigation or not relevant. • Geographical terminology isolated or absent and there are frequent written language errors.
0 Marks	• No response or no response worthy of credit.

Assessment Grid for non-exam assessment – Investigative geography (04/05)

	AO1	AO2	AO3	Total
--	------------	------------	------------	--------------