
1.1 How can exploring the context a design solution is intended for inform decisions and o

a. Considerations for exploring a context should include: i. where and how the product or system is used ii. identifying primary user and wider stakeholder requirements iii. how the investigation of social, cultural, moral and economic factors to identify opportunities and constraints can influence the design process.	✓
--	---