

| Section A                                                                                                                                       | Content                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Learners should be able to:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Reading unseen prose fiction texts from the 20th and/or 21st century. One text may be literary non-fiction. | Learners read a wide range of high-quality prose fiction texts drawn from the 20th and/or 21st century. This may include, for example, extracts from novels, short stories or literary non-fiction such as autobiography. Learners engage with the detail in texts to draw inferences and recognise the possibility of different reactions. They explore the impact of writers' uses of language, structure and grammatical features on the reader. Learners support their ideas about texts with carefully selected evidence. They develop knowledge and understanding of linguistic and literary terminology to support their analysis of texts. | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>comment on writers' choices of vocabulary, form and grammatical features and how these create meaning</li> <li>analyse and compare writers' use of language, paying attention to detail</li> <li>draw inferences and justify points of view by referring closely to evidence from the text</li> <li>interpret writers' meanings and effects in single texts and across two texts</li> <li>identify the main themes and ideas in texts</li> <li>use appropriate linguistic and literary terminology to support their analysis</li> <li>evaluate how form and structure contribute to the effectiveness and impact of a text</li> <li>use a broad understanding of the text's context to inform their reading. Contexts could include for example, the setting or genre</li> <li>explore connections across texts to develop their understanding of the ideas, attitudes and values presented in them.</li> </ul> |

|                                                             |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|
| Content of Writing imaginatively and creatively (02) |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|