

Psychological Problems	Content
Theories/Explanations Biological Explanation of Clinical Depression Psychological Explanation of Clinical Depression	Clinical Depression • The clinical characteristics of clinical depression as outlined in the International Classification of Diseases (ICD)² • Key statistics of clinical depression including reference to prevalence; age; sex; ethnicity; and recovery rates • The biological theory – the social rank theory of clinical depression: ◦ the evolutionary function of depression ◦ the role of a lower rank in reducing conflict ◦ criticisms of the theory including the reductionism/holism debate. • The psychological theory - the ABC Model of clinical depression: ◦ rational versus irrational beliefs ◦ the roles of activating events, beliefs and consequences ◦ criticisms of the theory including the freewill/determinism debate. Clinical Depression Research Study – Tandoc et al. (2015): Study into Facebook use, envy, and depression among college students: Is Facebooking depressing?
Application The development of treatments	• The use of anti-psychotics and anti-depressants to treat schizophrenia and clinical depression and how they improve mental health through changing the actions of the brain and interactions between neurons and synapses • The use of psychotherapy for treating schizophrenia and clinical depression and how it improves mental health • The development of neuropsychology for studying schizophrenia and clinical depression, including neuropsychological tests and brain imaging techniques.

² Teachers should use the most recent version of ICD when starting to teach a two year course.