

Personal Rule to Restoration 1629–1660 (J410/13)

This depth study focuses on the main political and religious developments in Britain from 1629–1660. The aim is to give learners the opportunity to study in depth a period of fundamental significance in British history.

This depth study should be taken alongside the thematic study 'War and Society c.790–2010'. It takes a different focus from the thematic study by focusing on the role and development of Parliament in this period.

In the course of the study learners will also be assessed on their ability to use historical sources in an investigation.

Learners should be taught about:

- the political and religious tensions which led to war
- divisions within Parliament
- the changing relationship between parliament and key individuals and groups
- the nature and extent of political and religious change in the period.

Learners should examine the points above through the contexts and content set out below.
