

3.5 Delivering this unit

- It is advised that the choice of stimulus material/s, theme or issue is made by the teacher.
- The stimulus material may, if wished, be explored initially through practical work facilitated by the teacher.
- The stimulus material may be drawn from a wide range of possibilities, eg an artefact, a series of linked newspaper articles, a published play, a short story, a painting, photographs.
- Students should develop their performance piece in the light of the style and ideas of a practitioner/s.
- The performance piece should be designed for a particular, defined audience.

When work on a published play text is the preferred option, students may:

- select one scene or an extract as a starting point
- focus on a selected theme, character idea etc and reconstruct the play
- deconstruct the play
- create the play in a new style and/or genre.

Candidates should be placed in performance groups where they will be given the opportunity to achieve their full potential. Teachers will need to adopt a grouping policy which is most suitable for their students.
