

3.3 Globalisation has affected some places and organisations more than others.	a. Degree of globalisation varies by country and can be measured using indicators and indices (AT Kearney index, KOF index). (2)
	b. TNCs are important in globalisation (P: role of TNCs) both contributing to its spread (global production networks, glocalisation and the development of new markets) and taking advantage of economic liberalisation (outsourcing and offshoring).
	c. There are historical, physical, political, economic and environmental reasons why some locations remain largely detached from globalisation (🌐 North Korea or some rural communities in Niger). (3)
