

3.3 Learning theories	3.3.1 The associative theories (classical and operant conditioning). Reinforcement – positive, negative, punishment, stimulus–response (S-R) bond – and its use in skill learning.
	3.3.2 Thorndike's three laws in relation to learning as effect, exercise and readiness and their application to practical situations.

Subject content	What students need to learn
	3.3.3 Fitts and Posner's three stages of learning (cognitive, associative and autonomous). The characteristics and coaching requirements at each stage. The type and role of different types of feedback at each stage.