

Area of Study 3 – Music for Stage and Screen

This is a varied topic and the two set works are representative works from the musical and film music genres. The song 'Defying Gravity' from Wicked presents opportunities to study this popular piece of West End musical theatre. The Star Wars films are well known and the study of the main theme from Star Wars Episode IV: A New Hope will give an understanding of how film music is composed as sound to picture.

The four pieces of suggested wider listening provide further examples of both the musical and film music. These pieces provide more background to the topic and enhance the study of the set works.
