

D - Global Issues

fragile environments

	Essential content
social abuse	• The fragility of sustainable development
as. Its to be nsure a table	• Causes of population pressure • Consequences of population pressure; resource scarcity
	• Causes of agricultural intensification • Consequences of agricultural intensification; global warming; climate change • Managing agricultural intensification; the need for sustainable agriculture
	• Global warming; including agricultural intensification; changes in land use • Consequences of global warming; changes in land use; settlement patterns; supply. Demand • Managing global warming; energy sources; the consequences of global warming

- Global Issues
Globalisation and migration
	Essential content	Scale	Required case studies
n is nations of creasingly ent. Major of people ause and nce of this ence.	- The rise of the global economy (growth of production and commodity chains) and the factors encouraging it (trade, foreign investment, aid, labour, modern transport and information technologies). - The global shift in manufacturing and the reasons for this (labour costs, resources, profiteering). - TNCs: organisation; role as key players in the global economy; benefits and costs to countries hosting TNCs.	Global, national and small	- Case study of India and China's changing role in the global economy: reasons and consequences. - Case study of the global operations of a TNC or a TNC's operations in one LIC.
	- The growth of global tourism and its causes (increased leisure, the package holiday, modern transport, marketing). - The impact of mass tourism on the environment, economy and people of destination areas. - Attempts to make tourism more sustainable (ecotourism).	Global, national and small	Case study of one sustainable tourism project: reasons for and nature of.
	- Migration – a component of population change; international migration; net migration. - Types of migration (voluntary versus forced); the push-pull factors affecting migration. - Managing migration – refugee and asylum-seeker issues: the case for controlling migration flows.	Global, national and small	Case study of one international migration flow: causes and consequences.

- Global Issues
Development and human welfare
	Essential content	Scale	Required case studies
in it and are exist of scales ject to - time.	- The nature of development (a complex, multi-strand process) and quality of life. - Development indicators: per capita GDP/GNI; employment by sector; energy consumption; birth, death and infant mortality rates; life expectancy. - Quality of life indicators: housing; health and healthcare; access to services; diet; literacy; security and safety; political freedom; the HDI.	Global and national
	- The classification of countries according to their level of economic development – HIC, MIC and LIC. - The changing pattern of global development, emerging economies, NIC, BRICS. - The development gap at different spatial scales (symptoms and causes) – global (North-South divide); regional (growth versus decline; core versus periphery) within countries; local (deprivation versus affluence) within urban areas.	Global, regional and small	1 Case study of regional disparities within one country: nature, causes, consequences and management.
	- Rapid population growth and its quality of life consequences (poverty, unemployment, inadequate housing and physical infrastructure). - Government policies to manage population change. - Managing disparities in development and quality of life: appropriate aid; using intermediate technology; fair and freer trade; debt relief.		2 Case study of how population changes are being managed in one country. 3 Case study of a UN aid agency project in an LIC. 4 Case study of a non-governmental aid agency project in an LIC.