19th century prose Choice of one set text from: • Great Expectations – Charles Dickens • Pride and Prejudice – Jane Austen • The War of the Worlds – H G Wells • The Strange Case of Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde – Robert Louis Stevenson • Jane Eyre – Charlotte Brontë.	Centres study one set text from the five 19th century prose set texts that include a range of classics. Learners develop comprehension skills. Learners articulate their understanding of key aspects of plot, characterisation, events and settings and learn to differentiate between literal and implied meaning. Learners develop critical reading skills. Learners engage personally with 19th century texts of enduring appeal and build confidence in their abilities to sustain an individual response which is supported and justified. Learners reflect on relevant social, historical or cultural contexts – for example, social customs and attitudes, or literary contexts – for example, generic features of science fiction or the Gothic. Learners develop their own viewpoints supported by textual evidence and at the same time recognise that there are different interpretations that other readers could make.	reflect critically and evaluatively on their reading. Learners are expected to respond to some of the following: • themes, ideas and issues • atmosphere and emotion • plot development • characters and relationships • language • relevant social, historical or cultural contexts, or literary contexts such as genre. • pay attention to the details of a text: understanding the significance of a word, phrase or sentence in context • demonstrate the ability to read at a literal level and also explore deeper implications • explain motivation, sequence of events and the relationship between actions or events. • identify and interpret key themes • make an informed personal response, justifying a point of view by referring closely to evidence in the text • reflect critically and evaluatively on a text, using an understanding of context to inform reading • recognise and evaluate the possibility of different valid responses to a text.

19 th century prose	Learners analyse and evaluate how language, form and structure inform and impact on their reading of texts. Learners will require knowledge and understanding of grammatical features and literary and linguistic terminology, including (but not restricted to), phrase, metaphor, meter, irony and persona, in order to support their views about the text with insight and precision. Learners develop writing skills. Learners make a sustained, informed personal response to their reading. They write effectively about literature for different purposes, including writing to describe, explain, summarise, argue, analyse and evaluate. Learners craft their writing and create impact through careful selection and emphasis of key points, interwoven with textual evidence to back up their understanding and ideas.	• explain and illustrate how choice of language shapes meaning • analyse how the writer uses language, form and structure to create effects and impact • use relevant subject terminology accurately to support their views. • produce clear and coherent pieces of extended writing • select and emphasise key points and ideas for a particular purpose • develop and maintain a consistent viewpoint • use textual references and quotations effectively to support views • use accurate Standard English and spelling, punctuation and grammar.
