

|                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3.2 Methods |  3.2.1 Correlational research <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The use of the correlational research method in psychology, including co-variables.</li> <li>• Types of correlation: positive, negative and including the use of scatter diagrams.</li> <li>• Issues surrounding the use of correlations in psychology; issues with cause and effect, other variables.</li> </ul>   3.2.2 Analysis of correlational data <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Analysis of, use of, and drawing conclusions from correlational studies, including scatter diagrams, using inferential statistical testing (use of Spearman's rho) and issues of statistical significance; levels of measurement; critical and observed values.</li> <li>• The use of alternate, experimental and null hypotheses. The use of IV and DV in experiments and co-variables in correlations. The use of control groups, randomising to groups, sampling, levels of measurement (ordinal, interval, nominal), reasons for using Spearman's rho.</li> </ul>   3.2.3 Other biological research methods <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Brain-scanning techniques (CAT, PET, and fMRI).</li> <li>• The use of brain-scanning techniques to investigate human behaviour, e.g. aggression.</li> <li>• One twin study and one adoption study, e.g. Gottesman and Shields (1966); Ludeke et al. (2013).</li> </ul>  |
|--------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|